McGill Department of BioMedical Engineering - Duff Medical Building, Room 302
Electives in medical informatics are offered to Clerkship students. Research projects are available in a variety of areas.
Tutorial electives are also possible in the area of computer applications in medicine. These electives can be offered to students with any level of computer experience, including none. They will be offered only if several students sign up for the same time period.
Interested students should contact the Elective Chair.
